Mr. Yelker presented a bill to adjust the present difficulties between the Etates, which was ordered to be printed.

Mr. Skirker presented a resolution of inquiry, that the Presidant inform the Senate whether Jao. B. Mr. Clarker presented resolutions, which he said he should offer as an amendment to the resolutions of the Senator from Kentucky, Mr. Critenden, when they came up as follows:

Resolved, That the provisions of the constitution are ample for the preservation of the Union and the protection of all the material interests of the country; that it deeds to be obeyed rather than amended, and our extrication from our present difficulties is to be looked for in strenuous efforts to preserve and protect the public property and sufforce the laws, rather than new guarantees for particular interests, or compromise or concessions to unreasonabledemands.

Mr. Sawano called for the reading of the President's message, and it was read.

Mr. Davis called for the reading of the accompanying papers, the correspondence of the South Carolina Commissioner already published.

Mr. Davis said while the country was looking anxiously to South Carolina, her commissioners arrived here with power to make a peaceable adjustment of the difficulties. The high character of these Commissioners is well known, yet the report went out that they had violated ctiquetts and issuited the President, and that the Commissioners retired. The President in his Message lated etiquette and insuited the President, and that the Coumissioners retired. The President in his Message does not even allude to the cause of the failure of the negociations and does not even teil us the Commissioners are some. He stops with a letter which we must say was wanting in fairness, and was a pervession of the arguments they presented.

Mr. Davis said he had an authentic copy of the Commissioners reply, and saked that it be read by the clerk.

Mr. Kino said the Senator talks of the high character of the Commissioners. Beredict Arnold and Aaron Burr once also had high characters.

Mr. Davis: (interrupting) the Senator from New-York once occupied a higher position than he does now. I call the Senator to order.

Mr. Kino: These men were here with a transonable purpose.

Mr. Davis: I call the Senator to order. I sent a paper to be read, sir.

Mr. Ense: I call the Senator to order. I object to the reading of the paper.

Mr. Davis: If the Senator has the meanness to object let it come back.

Mr. Kino said he objected to the reading. He did not want to hear the papers read.

A long discussion ensued on a point of order. The ayes and noes were called on the decision of the chair, that the paper was understood to be part of the Eenate

Mr. King said he objected to the reception of the paper. s he supposed it was supposed to supply a deficit in the resident's message.

Mr. Davis explained that he sent the paper simply to be read as part of his remarks, consequently he was much surprised to hear the objection, but if the Senate choose to take the paper as a paper of its own, he had no objection. As the Senate had taken charge of it, he would dispose of it.

Mr. Kine said he simply objected to the reception of it, as he supposed it was the supposed it.

Air. Kive said he simply objected to the reception of it, as he supposed it was intended to supply a deficit in the message, and thought it would be a rebuke to the President. He was willing the Secator should read the paper, but was not willing to disapprove the action of the President, in saying nothing of that letter. The decision of the chair was sustained. Ayes 31; nays 16.

The ayes and nays were called on reading the paper. Ayes 36; nays 13.

Ar. Davis resumed and said that more than ever since the episode thrown into his remarks he pitied the Executive of the United States. He must be fallen, indeed, when he comes to the Senator from New York for support and protection; but when the President received the letter, when the country was anxious, why didn't the President call on these men for means, by which peace could be restored? He might, then have avoided the evil of war, and the country would not be waiting now to see whether it would be peace or war.

Mr. Davis here yielded to the motion from Mr. Bigler, that the consideration of the message be postponed till to-morrow.

Mr. CRITTENDEN moved that his resolutions to submit up.

Mr. Clark said he wished to umend, by substituting the had substituting in the sample of the sa

Mr. Gway said he thought it would destroy the bill if t were referred to a committee.

Mr. Rick said it was evident that the friends of the bill intended to pass it without giving the North-West a show. He moved its indefinite postponement.

Alluding to the condition of South Carolina, he says there is no other alternative but to collect the revenues and protect the public property as far as is practicable under existing laws. His daty is to execute, not make the laws. The right and duty to use the military and naval force against those who illegally assall the Federal Government, is clear and indisputable; but the present state of things was beyond the Executive control. We are in the midst of a great revolution, and he recommended to Congress to act in the present emergency.—To Congress is reserved the power to declare war, and remove the grisvance that might lead to war.

Also, he was pale, lean and dejected; complaining of weakness and debility, having been so afflicted all summer. Now he appears to the father than the state of the power to declare was, and semilisted all summer. Now he appears to the father than the state of the control of the state of the

The recommendation made by the President is entitled to the respect of the American people; but the resolutions pending, instead of proposing a remedy, looked to a special committee to indict somebody. The resolution was passed—ayes 103, hays 62.

Mr. Maynard asked consent to offer a resolution that he minority report might be made from the committee of hirty-three.

Mr. Hindman called on the chairman to state the num-bur of members attending the meeting, whether there was any probability of making a report, and state, such particulars as would be calculated to shed some light on the subject. Mr. Burnet said he understood from the member from Arkanas that there was no probability of agreeing. A number of members representing the slave States had withdrawn from it; was it therefore politic or wise to continue the committee, when there was no prospect that they ever would report? He wanted to discharge them.

No action was taken on the resolution.

The House went into committee of the whole on the state of the Union on civil and miscellaneous appropriation bills.

The committee rose without coming to any conclusion on the bill.

On motion of Mr. Leake, the select committee on the President's special message were instructed to enquire whether sny arms have recently been removed from Harper's Ferry to Pittsburgh, and if so, by whose authority, and for what reason.

The resolution was smended so as to extend the enquirements.

The resolution was amended so as to extend the enquiry as to the removal of arms from all the arsenals.

Mr. Morris, of Pa., presented a memorial from citi sens of Philadelphia, signed by men of all parties, in favor of Mr. Criticnden's compromise. Referred to the committee of thirty-three.

On motion, the House adjourned.

TO-DAY'S PROCEEDINGS. HOUSE.

Washinston, Jan. 10.

Mr. Bortzien resumed his personal explanations. He denied the statement made in a newspaper published in his (Harper's Ferry) district, that he offered a resolution under which the committee of thirty-three was appointed, at the instance of members of the Republican party. He offered his resolution after a consultation with Democrats and the party with which he acts. He meant to test whether in response to the olive branch thus presented the Republicans would offer the sword. He had been disappointed in the action of the Committee, the manner in which it was formed and the delay after a menth's time in, making a report. If the House does not take action before another week, those who desire to preserve the sefore another week, thuse who desire to preserve the Republic, will find it too late.

Mr MAYNARD asked leave to offer a resolution directing the select committee to consider the President's spo-cial message, and to report on that part with reference to submitting the questions which are now threatening the dissolution of the Government, and that the committee report thereon at an early day, by bill or joint resolution.

Mr. Jones objected to its introduction.

Mr. Monais, of Pa., presented a memorial of citizens.

of Philadelphia, signed without distinction of party, suggesting a national convention, in that city, on the 22d of February, with a view to adjust the present difficultiles, and moved it be printed.

Mr. Branch objected only for the reason thal it was not customery to print papers eminating from private parties. Mr. Jones also objected to printing. Gentlemen said area deal about their Constitutional colligations.

Air. Morars knew of he party objecting to do what was just on the fubject, but there was a difference of opinion, as to what are Constitutional rights.

Air. Horston said that the brinting of the Memorial could do no harm. If a convutcin of Sintes can'the called to apply the remedy for the difficulties of the country they may as lesstsore usaed ceffu separation of the Unión.

Mr. Cox remarked that the memorial was signed by gentlemen of all parties, and proposed a National Con-vention to meetat independence Hall, where the Declara-tion of Independence was proclaimed, and the Constitu-tion was framed.
